

Neuroscience Research Paper 7

A neuroimaging study of default mode network alterations in major depressive disorder. We identify disrupted functional connectivity patterns that predict treatment response to selective serotonin reuptake inhibitors.