

Machine Learning Research Paper 16

A study on batch normalization alternatives for training deep residual networks. We introduce group normalization variants that perform consistently across different batch sizes.